Sansaar Pathe

We have learnt how to judge the vices and virtues, and praises and condemnations of others. But we have not learnt any method that will help us to live a long life, and carry out virtuous activities in the society and bring about any advancement of humanity. The education that is prevalent in our schools today focuses only on the history of many royalties, characters of kings and queens, the location of seas and nutritional values in different meats etc. This education creates such an attitude that leads to such a substandard thought process which we do not feel like bowing our heads before anybody. We have learned nothing but to ignore our national scriptures and our national systems. This is not our mistake. This is only due to the result of our modern education. Foreign education has made us so powerful that the moment we feel even slightly dignified by our learning and the moment we barely get a high position in the society, we do not feel satisfied unless we introduce our poor fathers to our friends as servants. This education has refined our perspectives in such a way that we feel that our religion is not a true religion; our women are inferior and insignificant; our medicines are truly not medicines, and our rituals cannot be considered as part of our religion. The reason for this is we are not taught how to protect our religion. Nowadays, parents think that their worries will be over if their son can pass B.A. or M.A. examinations by any means, even by stealing question papers. However, none of the parents want to know how their children can be healthy, strong and live a long life. If someone is expecting money from their children while anticipating them to earn fame, then along with the prevailing education, it is the duty of the parents to teach about – what is our religion, how to protect ones' body, how to protect oneself from vices and how to develop ones' character, how to gain physical strength, what is the mystery about the Hindu Gods and Goddesses, how is the Hinduism the best religion, how can one be endowed with all good qualities, what can one do for the progress of the nation and for the people and the country to be benefited. Because if the child does not get the right education from the beginning, then through the discussion of various demonic education, there is no doubt that the kid will earn demonic qualities in future. I sincerely request the authorities in the National Education Council to appoint one or two priests in the schools who can plant the seeds of dharma in the tender hearts of the young students.

To excel in this world, first, one has to focus on physical wellbeing. Because everything is fruitless unless one protects his own life. However, not many know how to do that. Also, not many are interested in knowing much about it. We throw away the precious gems of information available in our religious texts mistaking them for mere glass pieces. Once one acquires true knowledge, all bad actions disappear. Thus, it is everyone's duty to look for ways of acquiring that knowledge.

First of all, we are all blind; on top of that, there is a dearth of Sadguru. The ones who are offering advice, most of them are more blind than us. So, there is no doubt that our society will face such misery.
